Message from Secretary-General of the Consortium of Thai Medical Schools

For more than two decades, the Consortium of Thai Medical Schools (COTMES) has cooperated with Thai medical schools to arrange the Thai medical education conference. The objective of the conference is to make knowledge sharing collaboratively for developing medical education, including medical education research. Thai medical education conference host is rotated around members of the consortium. This year, the Faculty of Medicine Siriraj Hospital was honored to be the host of the 20th Thailand medical education conference.

The conference will be held under the major theme of “Educational Disruption in Medical Schools” on December 11-13, 2019. The topic relates to the disruption technology, which plays a vital role in medical education. The medical schools are essential to drive and adapt to the digital disruption situation immediately. The 20th Thailand Medical Education Conference will be an international conference that brings together the expert guest speakers from Thailand, the Netherlands, the United States, and Singapore, to share their knowledge about instruction, curriculum development, measurement and evaluation, and educational technology suitable and useful for the development in medical education.

Sincerely, on behalf of the Consortium of Thai Medical Schools, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Faculty of Medicine Siriraj Hospital and contributors in conference management. I hope this conference will be a great success, and all the participants will be benefited from sharing medical education knowledge with our members and Thai medical education.

(Professor Avudh Srisukri)
